Mike Mills will be the guest star of this year's edition of "Teach me, some music" Festival.

Mike Mills (born 1966, Berkeley CA) is a movie and music video director, graphic designer, founder and member of "The Directors Bureau", a collective of artists such as Roman Coppola, Sophia Coppola, Geoff McFetridge and Melodie McDaniel.

He directed "Deformer", a documentary film about the life of famous skateboarder/artist Ed Templeton, music videos for Moby, Yoko Ono, Zoot Woman, Divine Comedy, Everything but the Girl, Les Rythmes Digitales, Mansun, Frank Black, Jon Spencer Blues Explosion & Cibo Matto.

For the French band Air he directed four videos and designed several cd covers.

As a graphic designer, he curated covers and promotional material for Beastie Boys, Beck, Sonic Youth and Ol' Dirty Bastard.

In addition, he created the graphics for X-Girl, Marc Jacobs. He realised his first movie, "Thumbsucker", featuring Vincent D'Onofrio and Keanu Reeves, in 2005.

Mike Mills' latest project, named "Humans", is available on www.humans.jp

At "Teach me, some music" Mike is going to show the audience his latest videos. Beside this, he is also going to held a three-days workshop titled "Experimental Music Videos". Students will explore issues that go beyond the public image of the band they will choose, editing fresh and innovative videos as a final outcome.
